Truly great teachers not only impart knowledge, but call you to grow your character, inspire and encourage you exceed your own expectations, and lead by example. Dr Rowe embodies what it is to be a great teacher, and he manages to do this with the grace, compassion and insight of a skilled healer. He is a rare find indeed. Thank you Todd for all you have brought to me and our community.

There were many “best” things about the AMCH program. The video tapes of real patient cases were always fascinating. Dr. Rowe’s use of movies to demonstrate various remedies and their rubrics were always fun and insightful. The variety in teaching faculty allowed us to see different styles of practice and discuss methods for interpreting cases. I was impressed with the whole experience and enjoyed attending classes and studying the curriculum. Since it was a part time program over 3 years, it allowed me to continue working professional and theoretically (in my mind) practice homeopathy (the Practice that I worked in would not approve of using it) as I cared for my patients.

Professionally, I decided to focus completely on Homeopathic medicine with both adults and children. This was a big decision but after 20 years of practicing pediatrics I felt I was ready to take the leap into alternative medicine and give it my fullest dedication. It has always been my focus to work preventatively with people. Originally as an Early Childhood teacher and then as a Pediatrician, I felt the greatest impact on ones life would be to avoid problems through education and preventative care. Although we try our best to do this, there will still be spiritual, emotional, mental and physical issues that arise that must be treated to bring back balance to our lives. I have found Homeopathy to be wonderful for this and personally use it with my family and friends. My homeopathic remedy kit goes everywhere with me and my Girl Scout troop knows I can take care of many of their ailments when were on campouts and fun trips.
